From the Desk of Father Frank

On the upcoming election ...

Dear Parishioners,

I'm sorry to say that I don't have good news for you. Well yes, I still preach the Gospel or good news of Jesus Christ, but I can't give you any good news about the coming election being able to solve all our problems. If you were hoping for that, you are delusional. Only Jesus can bring us true peace and eternal happiness. So, no matter who is elected president, or any other office, or what ballots get passed or defeated, there will still be sin in the world.

I bring up this seemingly obvious fact because some people are coming at parts of this election as if our government should solve all our problems. For instance, they will not vote for one of the presidential candidates because neither one is perfectly conformed to their perspective of how the country should work. They don't want to choose the lesser of two evils, because it's still evil. It is because of this attitude that even the Pope mentioned that we should vote, and he even said that we should choose the lesser of two evils. What the Pope was trying to warn us about is that by not voting we could end up with the greater of two evils, and we could be partially responsible, because we didn't do our part.

There is another issue wrapped up in this election that is a little more complicated and can have the same result of having the greater of two evils. The abortion initiatives do not create perfection, so some people are avoiding doing something about them. I have good friends in the pro-life movement that are frustrated with Initiative Measure 434 because it still allows some abortions to be legal in our state. They believe that we should trust in God and the goodness of Nebraskans to vote for an initiative which would out law every abortion. They are not willing to put up with anything but perfection. The result of this could be that Initiative 434 might not pass and Initiative 439 will pass. This would mean that abortions would basically be available, and abortionists protected throughout pregnancy.

We are the only state to have two initiatives to vote on. This means that it is not picking for or against one question. We are faced with four possible scenarios:

- 434 and 439 get enough votes to pass and the one with a greater percentage of 'yes' votes beats the other and becomes the law of the land
- 434 fails and 439 passes and we have all abortions legal
- 434 passes and 439 fails and we continue to have a limit on surgical abortions after the first trimester
- 434 fails and 439 fails and we stay with how current state laws written, which limits abortions.

Like our presidential election, not voting gives the greater of two evils a better chance to happen. Those who are in favor of abortion will be going out to vote. I pray that more pro-life voters will go out and vote.

I'm sad to say that the election is not the last of the bad news. Abortions are no longer limited to surgical abortions in clinics. Now abortion pills can be easily obtained online. This has become very popular, and laws seem to have no effect on limiting this trend. Now teenagers can order them without their parent's knowledge. Men can pose as women and order them and slip the pills into a female's drink, and she just thinks she had a miscarriage. In other words, there doesn't seem to be any way of laws controlling our moral compasses.

Some of the ads that you see or hear talk about how government should be getting into the business of trying to tell women what to do or not to do. That sounds so correct until it is pointed out that this is the basis of all our laws. We used to think murder was bad, so we have laws about it. We still have laws against drug use, but those are just about meaningless at this point. I could go on and on. The reality is that it is getting to be impossible to control the moral or immoral behavior of those around us. It makes the lawlessness of the wild west seem like kindergarten playtime.

This is part of what I have learned as I have traveled around the world in the last few years. Many parts of the world have been facing this kind of chaos for years and other parts of the world are becoming lawless. I attribute it to many people losing any sense of God's reality. By this I am referring to two groups; those who don't believe in God and those who have lost all fear of God. We have listened for so many years to the message that God loves us unconditionally and that everyone goes to heaven, that God is no longer consequential.

There are dozens of places in the Bible that let us know that fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. May the Holy Spirit give us more of the gifts of wisdom, knowledge, and understanding.

God bless you,
Fr. Frank Baumert
