From the Desk of Father Frank

Dear parishioners,

I've been hearing from many of you who follow Catholic issues on social media. A more recent question concerns the temporary silencing of Fr. Ripperger. He is most known for his work as an exorcist. I spend very little time on social media, almost zero, but I have heard from you that there is a lot of chatter about this issue. Some support him, while others oppose him. I can add a little to the conversation. I do not know him personally. He worked in Omaha for a while as the exorcist for our archdiocese. He wrote a book that many priests look at as holding many helpful things about fighting spiritual opposition. I also know that when he started to go on social media, something happened that is very problematic. It fed his ego a lot. Pride is a problem that we all face, but pride for an exorcist gives the devil a tremendous edge. This in itself is a good enough reason for his bishop to request this year of social media silence. It would be for his own good. I can guarantee that there are many more things that are in play with this decision, but this is plenty to justify what is happening. Please pray for him, his bishop, and the people he works with.

A second thing came up months ago. This had to do with the Society of St. Pius X, SSPX. They recently ordained four new bishops. Pope Leo XIV announced this as a formal schism of their six bishops which means that they are excommunicated. This is not because they have Mass in Latin. It is because they have rejected several key teachings of the Second Vatican Council. There are legitimate Latin Masses that have been okayed by the church. The key parish in the Archdiocese of Omaha that has legitimate Latin Masses is Immaculate Conception Parish in South Omaha. I have many friends who belong to that parish. The pastor was a kid in one of the parishes I worked in years ago. I knew his parents very well. From this you should be able to understand that it is not having Mass in Latin that is the problem, but this particular group, SSPX, went against church teachings. What this means is that people who are attending Masses by this group are not attending a legitimate Mass. Their priests are excommunicated, so they no longer have the faculties to consecrate the bread and the wine. Once they lose their connection to the Church, the Body of Christ, they can no longer have valid sacraments. So once again, please pray for those priests, bishops, and the people who belong to this group.

With October ending, we should be halfway through the two-month time period that the archbishop thought it would take for things to get resolved for the priest from India to be ready to come here. Pray for that also. Personally, I am praying but I'm not going to be holding my breath in anticipation.

God bless you,
Fr. Frank Baumert

Your support makes a difference!

Archbishop's Annual Appeal: One Church, One Mission

The Archbishop's Annual Appeal supports the mission of the Catholic Church throughout the Archdiocese of Omaha, While our parish collections provide for the needs of our local communities, the Annual Appeal helps support the broader work of the Church across northeast Nebraska.

Gifts to the Appeal help fund important ministries, including the education and formation of future priests, Catholic schools, faith formation, support for parishes, and outreach to those who are poor or in need. These ministries allow us to share Christ's love and mercy with people both inside and outside our parish communities.

Every gift, no matter the size, makes a difference. When we contribute to the Archbishop's Annual Appeal, we join Catholics throughout the archdiocese in supporting a mission that no single parish could accomplish alone. We are reminded that we are part of something greater than ourselves—a Catholic community united in faith and service.

Thank you to everyone who has generously contributed.

If you have not yet made a gift, please prayerfully consider supporting the 2026 Archbishop's Annual Appeal.

Together, we can strengthen our Church and continue the work of Christ in our communities.

October 2026

Dear Parishioners

This is the latest installment of the financial situation of the eight campus sites. This will let you know what each site has in savings and what the limitations of those accounts entail. The first thing to notice is that these figures are where things stand as of the end of September.

The first column indicates where the monies are held.

Some of our funds are deposited in the Archdiocesan Deposit and Loan, an initiative established several decades ago to help parishes support one another financially. At the time, major building projects often required substantial loans with high interest payments. The Deposit and Loan program created a way for parishes to borrow money from other parishes at lower interest rates, typically less than 5%, while allowing parishes with extra savings to earn a 3.5% return on their deposits.

The program is managed by the archdiocese, and parishes are expected to place their surplus funds in this account. The idea is to create a shared resource that allows parishes to help one another, much like members of a family support each other when needs arise.

This arrangement is particularly intended for surplus funds designated for general purposes, rather than money that may be restricted for specific projects or other designated uses.

Another type of savings shown in the report is Certificates of Deposit (CDs). Various parish organizations have used CDs to set aside money for special projects and future needs.

These accounts can be a helpful way for parish groups to encourage participation and build enthusiasm among their members. When people see their hard work and fundraising efforts come to fruition in a completed project, it gives them a real sense of accomplishment and encourages them to continue working toward future goals.

Although CDs generally earn modest interest, their primary purpose is to keep the funds secure and set aside until the time is right to move forward with the intended project. They provide a practical way for these organizations to save gradually and make their plans a reality.

There are also maintenance funds. Usually these are invested a little more aggressively to gain more interest. Gaining interest is also important for endowments. Hopefully these can grow faster to keep up with inflation. Most of you know there is a big difference between these two types of savings. Endowments are set up so that only the interest can be spent. The main fund, the principle, stays intact. It is like farming. The land is the principle. The land produces a product. You only use and sell that product. You don't sell parts of the land to pay the bills or soon you won't produce enough to survive. Because I have worked in many parishes I tend to donate toward endowments. I want my gifts to have a positive effect long after I move to another parish. Some people are blessed enough to do this with their estates. They might leave some money, through their will, to help the parish that has been a huge part of their life for years to come. Some of our parishes and the school have been blessed in this way.

We hold these investments in two different places.

The first is Furstenau Financial in Neligh. Working with a local financial firm helps support local jobs and keeps business within our communities. The investments managed through Furstenau Financial are held with Charles Schwab.
The second is the Catholic Futures Foundation (CFF), which manages hundreds of endowments for the Archdiocese of Omaha. These investments are held with Merrill Lynch.

Both organizations help manage and invest our funds, supporting our goal of preserving and growing these resources so they can continue to serve our parishes and school into the future.

I hope to continue keeping you informed about our finances and how we manage the resources entrusted to us.

As Catholics, we have many opportunities to share our time, talent, and treasure in building up the Kingdom of God. These opportunities include supporting world mission work, diocesan ministries, parish ministries, and local charities. Each plays an important role in living out our faith and serving others.
Hopefully, each of us will prayerfully consider how we can do our part in supporting these important efforts. I look forward to sharing more about these ministries and the ways we can support them in future updates.

Fr. Frank
