Happy Sunday! Welcome to “We’re all in this together!”

We are six communities of faith with two priests, and we are now in a parish grouping together. There is a new mass schedule, a new logo, a new priest structure, and a new parish structure. Things are a bit different and things are a bit the same. We are adopting the title “Catholic Parishes in Partnership” to refer to our six communities of faith.

As we enter this new reality, we are taking this, a day at a time. Fr. Vogel and I and our staff are asking for your patience as we figure this out. Change takes time. Change isn’t always easy. If you have a concern about something, please feel free to email me directly at jnorman@cppnebraska.org. There are many changes that are being felt in our business offices, and it is going to take some time for us to work through them. It may take some time for this arrangement to seem or feel less cumbersome. We’re doing the best that we can. This model of parish administration is good for us, since it gives each of us a future and we are able to honor the distinctive personality and heritage of each community of faith. In short, our future is together.

I do want to invite everyone to my installation as pastor for St. Boniface, St. Bonaventure, and St. John the Baptist in Petersburg. Fr. Starman, as the dean of Rural Northwest, is coming down for the installation Mass on Sunday July 14 at 5PM at St. John the Baptist in Petersburg. We’re having a potluck afterwards, so I invite you to come and bring something to share!

It will take some time for everyone to get to know each other... myself included. Please introduce yourself... even if it is again and again and again.

Finally... let’s remember each other in prayer.

Peace,
